Builders of Lottery Home Donate $190,000 to Foundation

Wastell Builders Group, trades make major gift to London Health Sciences Foundation

London, Ont. – Wastell Builders Group has built London Health Sciences Foundation’s Millionaire Lottery prize-home for the last two years. Two years ago the winner chose the cash option, last year the winner chose to take the prize-home.

After the purchase price and the MSRP for the prize-home were set, construction began. Unknown to the Foundation, the suppliers, trades and builder decided that they would raise funds for a donation. These building partners chose to accumulate the funds for their donation in large part by reducing their billings to the builder.

“This is a significant, unprecedented and very-much welcomed effort of those involved to make this donation,” said Brent Kelman, Board Chair of LHSF. “The suppliers, the trades and the Wastells were not obligated to make this effort and give to London Health Sciences Foundation.”

When the invoices started coming in to Wastell Builders Group, they realized that there was a more than a significant amount accumulating to the point where, between all suppliers, trades, and the Wastells, $190,000 is being donated today to London Health Sciences Foundation. This is not a reduction in the price or value of the prize-home, but it is a donation outside of the reasonable and agreed upon price for constructing the prize-home.

“Credit has to be given to everyone involved,” said Garry Wastell. “The $190,000 reflects the generosity of the many partners involved in the construction of the prize-home.”

Supporting the highest priorities of London Health Sciences Centre

The donation is 'undesignated' - the most desirable method of donating as it allows LHSC to use the funds for the highest priority needs of the Hospital.

“Everyone who has contributed to this donation knows that building a home takes many hands, cooperation and most of all care,” said Jim Flett, Integrated Executive Vice President, Finance Services and Chief Financial Officer for LHSC. “With this donation these builders are also helping build a home for our clinicians, researchers, employees, students and volunteers to care for patients and families here at London Health Science Centre.”
